OCTOBER BUILDER THEME: "I Am A Builder When I Am Perfectly Honest!"

Our students are focusing on being perfectly honest this month. The reason we use the phrase "perfectly honest" is because in our world there is often a message sent that there is such a thing as "pretty honest" or "honest enough". We encourage you to discuss this at home to help your students understand the difference. There are few values needed more in this life than honesty and consequent trust that comes from it. These tips can help you teach your children how to be honest in their daily lives.

Talk about how much you value honesty in your family. Discuss how important it is to every family member to always count on each other to tell the truth-even when it's difficult. If there's not honesty, there won't be closeness in your family. Focus on how honesty is the foundation upon which your mutual trust and respect are built. Each family member supports and defends each other, but dishonesty will change the nature of your relationship dramatically. Once trust is broken, it takes a long time to build it back.

Place more emphasis on their truthfulness than on the consequence for their dishonesty. Of course you should impose consequences for dishonesty, but emphasize that everyone makes mistakes that bring consequences, but consequences increase when dishonesty is discovered, because trust will be broken. No matter what your child does, first and foremost, acknowledge and praise their honesty. Help and support your student practice perfect honesty, so they will not be afraid to tell the truth.

Honesty is a life-long quest and something we have to work on all of the time, not just when we are children. Please use this opportunity to discuss how much you value integrity in your family. Tell them how proud you are that they are demonstrating honesty.

VIRTUAL PARENT EMPOWERMENT: Suicide Prevention

What if you knew how to prevent death for your child? What would that be worth to you? Suicide is the #1 killer for our kids 10-24. Adults are also plagued by suicide with middle-aged men having the highest rate. However, there is something we can do and it's proven effective. Join us on Tuesday, October 8th at 7 pm for a Virtual Parent Empowerment Workshop on Suicide Prevention. We will learn to recognize the signs of suicide, learn how to ask someone about suicide, and how to help get them to help. We will also look at ways to improve mental health and prevent suicide ideation and attempts. Everyone really can make a difference! Feel free to invite family and friends over and participate together. Your students will receive an incentive from your school for attendance.
